

St Anne's Home of Compassion

1941 – 1984

Details

St Anne's Home of Compassion, Broken Hill, was operated by the Daughters of our Lady of Compassion (Sisters of Compassion) from 1941 until 1984. St Anne's Home of Compassion housed girls aged two to 16 years.

St Anne's Home had been established at Broken Hill since 1898, under the management of the Sisters of Mercy.

The Daughters of Our Lady of Compassion took over St Anne's Home from the Sisters of Mercy on 11 February 1941.

At the time of the transfer 26 girls lived in the Home and their care was transferred from the Sisters of Mercy to the Daughters of Our Lady of Compassion.

St Anne's Home of Compassion charged no fees, and the upkeep and running expenses were met wholly by public donations. In the 1970s, as social changes occurred, there were fewer applications for the care of children. As numbers dwindled it was decided that the need for care of children in an institutional setting was no longer necessary. In June 1984 the Sisters withdrew from the Home and it was closed.
